Associated Press WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court has declared unconstitutional a Republican-sponsored restriction requiring congressional candidates to show a photo ID at the polls. In the 8-1 ruling, the court said showing photo ID does not violate the First Amendment rights to free speech and association. But the justices said that states still may require voters to show their photo ID at their request. Chief Justice John Roberts and Justices Samuel Alito, Antonin Scalia and Clarence Thomas were in the majority. They said the law, which prohibited anyone without a photo ID from voting unless they could get a free one at a driver's license office or other government office, was a violation of the Constitution's equal protection clause. Briefs in the case, Crawford v. Marion County Election Board, were due to the court Tuesday. Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg was recused and did not participate. She had made statements about partisan politics while serving on the lower court that recommended it be struck down.Q: Why does my table not render in IE with table-layout:fixed? IE8 and IE9 are both IE with table-layout:fixed when I look at them in F12 Tools. But, I'd expect them to behave differently. For example, IE9 with table-layout:fixed renders a table without any horizontal spacing between header and body. Whereas I'd expect it to render the table with the appropriate table-layout:fixed. I have a table that contains a list of s with s. All of the s have a width of 50px in the CSS. The s have no width. The HTML in question looks like this: Header Header Header

Prioritization and Role of Dietary Supplements in Overcoming Postoperative Complications in Patients after Gastrointestinal Surgery: A Literature Review. Studies investigating the benefit of dietary supplements have shown conflicting results. A literature review was performed to assess and evaluate the current evidence regarding the usefulness of dietary supplements in gastrointestinal surgeries. In the last years, supplements with prebiotic and probiotic features have been widely used to prevent and treat complications after gastrointestinal surgery; yet they have been insufficiently studied. Studies investigating the use of pre- and probiotics had to be excluded due to the lack of data, thus a review of the existing literature was carried out. According to the new PRISMA reporting standards, 19 original articles were included in this systematic review. The studies were of heterogeneous methodologies. Overall, probiotics have been shown to be effective in reducing the incidence of postoperative infections, anastomotic leakage, and fistula in patients undergoing gastrointestinal surgery. In addition, the use of prebiotics has been shown to improve the incidence of postoperative gastrointestinal mucosal inflammation. Probiotics have also been shown to play a positive role in reducing mortality. Pre- and probiotics could be considered as adjunctive therapy in patients after gastrointestinal surgery. However, further studies are needed to assess the benefits and risks associated with the use of these supplements.The Minikami Subdivision of the Nishiwaki Line and the Minatogawa Line will be open. From the end of the next fiscal year, Minatogawa Line trains will be extended from the Minatogawa Station in the western city of Aichi to the Minatogawa Station in the eastern city of Chiba Prefecture in Chiba. Tohoku Railway Co. plans to extend the trains between the Nippori Station in Aichi and the Nippori Station in Chiba from the end of March. At present, the Iida Line in Nagano Prefecture is the only line that travels through an area where it takes time to change trains. The number of trains on the Iida Line is limited, and only one train operates through to and from the Chiba area, said an official with JR East. As a result, it is expected that the Minatogawa Line will become a practical transportation method. JR East will begin the construction of the Chiba Extension of the Minatogawa Line in fiscal 2014, and the line will be open by the end of
