Still, the package can be compressed with only the.m3u audio files. Any idea why? Is there some metadata that can be detected? Am I missing something? Couldn't say what this might mean but, unfortunately, I can't find any references to this online either. I can only guess that it is some sort of coding error, where it detects that the files it's offering contain a sequence which it cannot process, yet. If you notice this bug, I would suggest you submitting the plugin to upstream. The only harm that could occur is a rebooting of Audacity. I find that you need to be careful in using the.m3u files in which they are embedded. This file plays with the audio engine on Audacity and is not appropriate for this kind of use. I would suggest you to use the Audacity's action/task 'add audio file'. This option allows you to use any kind of sound file in Audacity, even if it is a.m3u. If you need to use the.m3u file, there is a procedure for it. It is not something simple, but it can be done. I found your message on the en.audacity.org. However, if there is a more complete (and official) explanation for this issue, we would prefer to hear it. Hello, If you are trying to install the software, you must have a server on the web.
