are in a subscription to remove tech support (and often this includes completely removing any software that is damaged by certain errors) is more lucrative to the copyright holders. Many companies do not have a technical support team. Just let it keep updating by itself. Get legal copies using legal means, or trust cracking websites. Есть дешевле себе и легально их надо и нужно бояться авторов источниковQ: setInterval setTimeout issue I'm building a simple (please don't laugh) real time multiplayer game. For now i'm stuck at the countdown timer. The problem is I have an interval between pressing the refresh button and the countdown fires. I'm using setInterval and setTimeout. The problem is that with setInterval the first function never gets fired. If I comment out setInterval everything works fine. Time Left var curr = new Date(); var min; var sec; var timer; function setInterval() { if (min > 0) { sec--; if (sec 0) {
