By Steve Kim A few days ago, on the social media website Twitter, the brains behind the sport, Don King, gave his point of view on the boxing match between Floyd Mayweather and Conor McGregor. The former boxing trainer and manager turned promoter (who is the co-owner of Golden Boy Promotions) said that Conor McGregor got what he wanted. First, by announcing to the world that he will be fighting Mayweather, with no boxers in the way. Then, by challenging Floyd Mayweather to a fight. Then, by referring to the undefeated boxer as the greatest fighter of all-time, thus trying to hurt his legacy. But, he doesn't believe in Mayweather's chin. "He don't believe in Floyd's chin," King wrote. "He's coming off a tough fight with [Floyd's protégé, Saul] Alvarez and it's easy for him to say that Floyd is not tough enough to get a knockout. Mayweather has the best chin in boxing. If he didn't, he'd be in prison." King then added, "He has the skills to keep himself busy for a couple of years. That will be his goal, just to keep Conor busy and not knock him out. Mayweather is the greatest puncher I have ever seen. And Conor will be lucky to survive. This may not be a fight, but it's a scam." "He's coming off a tough fight with Alvarez and it's easy for him to say that Floyd is not tough enough to get a knockout. Mayweather has the best chin in boxing. If he didn't, he'd be in prison ca3bfb1094
