The GSS is a key element of NORC's National Social Science Project, which provides comprehensive surveys of the opinions and attitudes of Americans on a wide range of political, economic, social and cultural issues. The GSS 2013 has been made available to the public on a restricted basis. The data files (public-use and restricted-use) are available for downloading from The access to restricted-use data for academic users is available to qualified investigators through ISR's Data Deposit. The 2013 GSS (N = 4,881) contains: 2,832 completed telephone interviews with Americans in 2013 821 Internet surveys conducted by NORC 1,440 telephone and Internet surveys conducted in 2012 1,260 telephone interviews conducted in 2011 640 telephone interviews conducted in 2010 320 telephone interviews conducted in 2009 Throughout the reporting of this release, you will find that some of the data on blacks and other people of color have been reported in aggregate form.
