opportunities. You can now make your players as physical as you want, controlling how they perform, predicting their actions, anticipating their movements, or overpowering them. This allows you to enjoy more control over how you play, respond to tactics and master team strategy. Global Player Performance: Real opponents mean real performance. Using new matchmaking technology, real-world player profiles provide in-game player data based on the real-world conditions and conditions your opponent faced. This means that a maximum-strength, high-performing FIFA player will have a specific strength, physicality and stamina level. When you play against other players with the same skills and abilities, you get the same gameplay as what you'd see in real-life. Movement: When it comes to mobility, FIFA 22 is a paradigm shift. Powered by an all-new skill tree, you can now tailor your players' skills, talents and attributes for the job, creating a fluid style of play and more opportunities for mesmerizing runs, elusive dribbles and instinctive passes. Players will also have more control over their movement, reacting quicker to reads and tackles, launching off the ground and stepping up on the ball. Ball Control: Completely new ball-to-ball control means realistic distance moves. As well as the new player impact engine, FIFA 22 has new ball physics. The transfer of speed from one ball to another is now much closer. Instinctive dribbles now have an affect on the other player, and defenders have new ways to close down players. This ensures that when you're controlling the ball, you can perform cutting, circling or controlled moves to change the direction and speed of the ball.
