Letters from Haiti
During the Crisis The crisis in Haiti has been ongoing for almost one year and has involved the intervention and collaboration of the United States and a multitude of others. This crisis will play out for years and years to come, as there are so many problems to be addressed and so many people affected in one of the most impoverished countries in the world. There is not enough time or space to mention all the things that are being done to help right now, but there are several things I want to focus on. This is a story of home, of family, and of loss. At the start of the crisis, the United States sent hundreds of U.S. forces to the Caribbean to support the Cacoona, the aircraft carrier docked in Cuba, and the Special Forces to Haiti. At the end of the mass migration, about two and a half to three months later, the

United States Government sent armed forces to the borders of Haiti to prevent soldiers from leaving the country and to ensure the stability of the situation. Many people died during the first stage of the crisis, and many more died after, but the United States troops arrived at the end. This is a story of loss, of home, and of family, as well as a story of hope. The hope in this story of home is that Haiti can rebuild itself and come back from the fire. (1437 words) The Crisis What was the crisis? The crisis occurred when thousands of people from the affected area were no longer able to stay. They were forced to leave their homes and seek refuge in neighboring countries. On January 12th, 2010, Haiti was hit with a series of earthquakes, followed by a massive storm that destroyed hospitals and killed thousands. This storm lasted for days and days, and the people with nowhere to go, and nowhere to go, they had to go out in the streets and in the mountains, where they had no food or shelter. At the end of the storm, on January 15th, up to three and a half million people fled Haiti. Many were scared to return to their homes

. Practical Matrix. Practical Matrix. Manual. Normal values are between 9 and 99. ♦. - GPO-018.. Advanced.1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a method of back-filling a sandblasting or painting process onto a surface after a core drilling, and particularly to a method of back-filling a sandblasting or painting process

onto an exterior surface of a paint container without a conventional strip. 2. Description of the Prior Art Many containers have been patented that are intended for producing sandblasting or painting on the exterior surface of the container. For example, U.S. Pat. No. 5,311,622 to Sharmon, Jr. et al. discloses a paint core barrel having a removable top cover. U.S. Pat. No. 3,568,484 to Biggs discloses a container with a funnel attached to the top of the container. U.S. Pat. No. 5,154,637 to Rotta et al. discloses a can core barrel for disposing paint cores. U.S. Pat. No. 2,869,228 to Mimi et al. discloses a painting can having a top member and bottom member with a projecting anvil projecting radially from the lower edge of the top member which abuts the projecting anvil on the projecting anvil. The present invention is a method of back-filling a sandblasting or painting process without a conventional sandblasting/painting tool onto a paint container, the method comprising the steps of: (a) providing a paint container having an exterior surface; (b) providing a tool; and (c) rotating the tool around the container so that a vertical axis of rotation of the tool and a base of the tool are simultaneously perpendicular to the surface, and an outer surface of the tool reciprocates in a longitudinal direction along the surface so that an edge of the tool has a horizontal component of motion and the tool is raised so that the horizontal component has a vertical component of motion. The present invention is a method of back-filling a sandblasting or painting process without a conventional sandblasting/painting tool onto a paint container, the method comprising the steps of: (a) providing a paint container having an exterior surface; (b) providing a tool; (c) mounting the tool in a lower end of the container; (d) rotating the tool around the
