It's the year 2188. The human race has grown tired of settling space and is ready to explore new planets. This is also the era of Colony Survival, a new game where players are responsible for their own survival on a peaceful, yet hostile, universe. Design your colony, research, harvest, build, battle and defend it against the invading hordes of monsters. Either join one of the three players in your world, or launch a private or public server for your colony. Build bridges, tunnels, stairs, overpasses and underpasses to make sure your colonists get where they want to go. Forge weapons, build buildings and add decorations to their colony. Make sure your neighbors live peacefully! Whether you're trying to collect as many resources as you can, or you're looking to start a conflict, the choice is yours. You can invite other players to join your colony, or start your own! Many jobs are available to unlock, each with their own set of requirements. Select an excavation tool and start digging - Monotrap will automatically build tunnels as you dig. Dock your Colony Starter Kit to get some help in the beginning. Build bridges and tunnels to connect parts of your colony. The age of man is over! Welcome to the age of machines. Parisian Faust The Parisian Faust performs at Project Gravity's live, interactive art and music festival "Open The Stone." In this video Faust takes us on a very special journey into the nocturnal Parisian music scene in 2018. Despair becomes euphoria. There is nothing that phases Quill when he is focused on one goal. It is as if these feelings are simply never phased and this is why he captures them and releases music to share with others. His is a musical voice without boundaries. Some may follow his trail, others may wander away, but most will choose just to listen. Project Gravity is an art and music festival in Germany, with a bit of a twist. It started as a side line to an experimental summer music festival in Puking Cows in 2008. In time it grew from a side line to something very recognisable. It incorporates art, music, performance art, interactive art, love, fashion and even food and if you visit, you will notice that the Festival has its own mini-kingdom with own ruler, a Faust in training. Quill may be a name that is unknown to some, but he has already earned himself a loyal following and a reputation for his fearless musical attitude. His music is beautiful, heartfelt, totally different to others. It is captivating, real, hooky and makes you beg for more. From producing to remixing to touring and playing festivals all over the world, Quill has basically done it all. Born in Melbourne Australia, but living in the constant cityscape of Paris, Quill has been doing his own thing since his teens. Being surrounded by smoke, booze and drugs at such an early age, he found himself looking for a fix. An early exposure to the dark side of life was enough for him to realise that the dirty side of one's life is also dirty in its essence. The possibility of finding himself in a toxic environment pushed him to not only explore his own darkness, but to chase it down and use all his abilities to produce his own music. Living between Paris and Australia, Quill still manages to stay sane in a world full of insanity, no matter how hard. It is an odd and wonderful world he lives in, one that will always hold a place in his heart. In the 10 years he has been producing music, releasing his own label “Fantasy of Technology” and have played festivals
