RAR Password Unlocker 5.0

The RAR Password Unlocker cracked program has been released by Alex Prokopevich, the author of . This K23 proposal is designed to develop Dr. Cara Ponziani's research into the role of methamphetamine use in the HIV/AIDS epidemic. The investigator will focus on methamphetamine abuse among women living with HIV in San Francisco's Castro area. Women are disproportionately affected by HIV, and they are affected more than men; one in three women living with HIV is infected with HIV through injection drug use. A significant proportion of injection drug users in San Francisco's Castro area use methamphetamine. The research and training plan will yield valuable information about the relationship of methamphetamine abuse with HIV, substance use, and health care utilization among HIV-positive women. The research will include a pilot study of a group intervention for methamphetamine abusers (compared to HIV+ and methamphetamine-free controls) and a clinical trial of the intervention. Dr. Cara Ponziani, an internationally recognized expert in women's health, will serve as mentor. Dr. Ponziani will also provide the necessary coursework to develop her clinical intervention, and she will supervise Dr. Ponziani's clinical trial. The proposed K23 plan and research agenda are designed to lay the groundwork for a full-scale R01 study. The research proposed will examine how methamphetamine use relates to HIV infection and substance use, specifically among women. The proposed study is timely, as recent reports indicate that methamphetamine use is increasing among women living with HIV. The research will include a pilot study and a clinical trial. In the pilot study, a group intervention for methamphetamine abusers will be developed. In the clinical trial, the developed intervention will be tested against a comparison group receiving medical care only. All women will be assessed at the baseline, 3 months, 6 months, and 12 months. In addition to using methamphetamine and injecting drugs, all women will be asked questions about HIV, substance use, and health care utilization. Data from the study will be used to develop a full-scale R01 application to examine the influence of methamphetamine use on HIV infection and on substance use. The P.I. will use data from the proposed study to continue her work on women's health, specifically HIV-positive women and injecting drug users. This K23 plan will provide Dr. Ponziani with the skills, research experience, and data to develop an independently-funded R01 study. Dr. Ponziani will also become a critical voice in HIV prevention research in women and methamphetamine use.
