Gonzoid (pronounced: GUHN-sih-oid) is a Windows and Mac MMO (MMO=Massively Multiplayer Online) First-Person Shooter, based in a very post-apocalyptic USA, sometime in the future. Gonzoid takes place in a time after an apocalypse where the world has been divided into three factions: the "good guys", the "baddies" and the "globbots". You can choose from 3 different characters (2 male, 1 female), with a class system which makes choosing a class easy. Each of the 7 classes has its strengths in both gameplay and in PvP, meaning you can have fun not only PvP but also in PvE, it's not a class system which divides the player in playing this game. The classes are all unique and have different fights, talents and equipment and you can't have a "diablo 2-like" character. All classes have PvP as well and the player has to make strategic decisions on when to fight or not in PvP. You don't have to join the "good guys" (who are in power now) if you don't want to but we'd prefer it if you will. Missions: Gonzoid has various different missions and raid zones for you to explore. No mission in this game is called the "simple mission" or the "hard mission" or whatever. Every mission has its own rules, goals and ways to reach them. Every mission is different from the other, you will find some missions which are 100% kill mission and others (almost) 100% stealth mission. Raids (are they missions or just a call to arms?) are special missions in which a group of players will have to team up to get the best result possible. They usually have time limits to finish them and you can stay in stealth or fight or fight and if you get caught by the enemy you'll probably die. New Content: There are 3 new maps which will be added soon and several features like new weapons, new locations, new armors, skins, more classes... Player List: Name: Age: Class: Time Zone: NOTE: In the Class column, every class has its own unique way to play, but it all shares the same base stats. For this reason, it doesn't matter which class you choose, except for the fact that as long as you choose a class, you will get at least two items (

This game was released on February 3, 2012. Click on the thumbnails to expand the images. Gameplay: The following gameplay information was provided by Ivan. Objective: Explore a city, rescue your kidnapped friend. Story: Robotpencil Presents: Character Design - Jubal () is a game in the genre of roguelikes (open-world role-playing games) and adventure games (adventure games), with many adventure game inspirations like Diablo and Wander's Dream. Gameplay and how to play: Jubal is a character designer for comic books. He wants to save his kidnapped girlfriend. Help him as you walk around and talk to people. You can perform dialogues to NPCs (non-player characters). A dialogue chooses three random answers, depending on who is talking. And this, in return, determines which dialogue options you have and whether you can perform a dialogue attack. All the events in the game have a consequence. You need to watch out for policemen (robots), zombies (players), pets (villagers), spies (other characters), other players (mercenaries) and monsters (bosses). The adventure game features multiple levels. Go through them in any order, unlock new game mechanics. The game is based on the idea that the player has less freedom than in real life. In the game, you can walk around but you are restricted in some ways. You can't walk everywhere, avoid places, talk to people. The only real free thing is talking to NPCs (non-player characters) and going to places. You can go to shops, to people and to your computer to chat to other players. Walking outside the streets will result in missing dialogues. The game is a role-playing game but the only essential elements to play are searching people, dialogues and running away. The graphics are enhanced with nice character animations, typical fantasy music, sound effects and the possibility to have a dialogue partner. All characters are designed by the character designer. If the player beats the boss of a level, the character designer gets an additional reward (more money, more XP or more xp points). Game Mechanics: Character Design: At the beginning of the game, you can create a character with four attributes: strength, height, perception and constitution. With strength, the character can carry more. With perception, the character can see, detect and hear things. Constitution
