Reduce Noise Noise reduction is especially useful in preventing unwanted digital artifacts and blurring when printing. There are many different ways of reducing noise, but the most common method is one of two ways: 1. Scale the image down. If you make the image smaller, you minimize the problem. If the image was too large to begin with, this is a quick and easy way to reduce it. 2. Sharpen. To sharpen an image, which sharpens the pixels already in the image, you must make a selection first. You can use the Select tool to make the selection or you can use an Adjustment Layer. A brightness/contrast adjustment layer can be used to sharpen an image.
