* **Painter:** Much like PhotoImpact, Painter is a simple drawing program, but it has some nice tools to help you create image designs.

* **Lightroom:** Lightroom is a tool that allows you to organize images by shoot mode, location, and date, and also by copyright status and ratings. You can sort images according to a number of criteria.

* **PaintShop Pro:** PaintShop Pro is a drawing and layout program, similar to Illustrator (covered in the next section), that offers other advanced layout tools.

* **Photomerge:** Photomerge is a simple and powerful tool for batch processing multiple images. The original Photomerge was a Mac product but is now available for the PC.

* **PhotoImpact:** PhotoImpact is a simple, easy-to-use graphics program that provides useful features and does not have a menu of complex steps. You get to the images by simply dragging and dropping them into the program.

* **Perfect Resize:** Perfect Resize is a simple resize program for images. It does what you ask it to and is a reasonable alternative to using a graphics program to resize an image.

* **Pixelmator:** Pixelmator is a Mac-only version of Photoshop and uses the same layers and editing options. Many features are the same for the PC version of Photoshop.

* **Pixelmator Pro:** Pixelmator Pro is a Mac-only version of Photoshop that is more powerful than the standard version of Photoshop. The main benefit of this version is its ability to extend Photoshop to Mac-only features such as keyboard shortcuts and support for Creative Suite.

* **Pixastic:** Pixastic is a great-looking app for adding watermarking or text on any image with a single click.

* **Pixlr-o-matic:** Pixlr-o-matic creates the same amazing-looking instant effects as the Pixastic app does, but includes a large number of filters and effects.

* **Pixlr:** Pixlr is a web-based editor designed for the iPad. It enables you to edit images, create graphics, or replace existing files and save your edits to Dropbox.

* **Pixlr.com:** Pixlr.com is a web-based editing tool that enables you to design a variety of effects in an easy-to-use interface

Novel microfluidic device for ligation-free isolation and purification of DNA. Currently, there are several DNA separation techniques for effective and efficient separation of DNA from other biomolecules based on electrophoresis and capillary and slab gel electrophoresis. Each of these methods has its own advantages and disadvantages, such as the amount of time needed, tedious procedures, and equipment-associated costs. The most common methods, e.g., gel electrophoresis and capillary electrophoresis, are time consuming and often require a special clean-up step prior to sequencing. A microfluidic device, on the other hand, would have the potential to remove these steps altogether, lowering the overall cost and making these methods more affordable. In this study, a novel microfluidic device capable of separating DNA in a short time without using any special clean-up steps is developed. The device combines a polydimethylsiloxane (PDMS) microfluidic chip with a glass capillary to form a single chamber in which the PDMS chip is attached to the glass capillary. Since the two components are integrated, they have the ability to withstand high fluid pressures and simultaneous introduction of sample buffer and a buffer containing the DNA sample. The time for DNA separation and purification is less than 10 min. Furthermore, we demonstrate that the device is effective in purifying DNA of up to 500 ng using only 8 µL of sample solution. The approach proposed in this study opens up new possibilities for the fabrication of microfluidic devices.
