Zooming in on an image layer A layer is a graphic element in the way that a photo is a graphic element. When you add a layer, it's like creating a new photograph. In either case, you create separate elements that you move and position as needed to build the final image. For example, to create a new graphic, you click and drag a blank photo to the new photo box, and then simply make the changes you want — such as making the picture bigger or smaller, or putting on a color filter. Layer behaves exactly the same way. You create a new layer as if you created a blank picture, and then you move and resize the graphic you create, by using

About Me I am a Christian, married to my best friend, mother to 3 crazy kids,2 in heaven, 1 here on Earth. I am also a blogger! There is a bit more of me and more about me you can read on my my blog. Tuesday, September 8, 2012 A Picture a Day With Mimi I had a day today at my house. I needed to get out of town. No, not because I didn't want to do anything: I had planned to clean my house and go to the county fair as my way of keeping my house clean while actually spending time with my family and in my community. I had also planned to make it a day of journaling, answering journals for my kids, putting my business card/promotion around for anyone interested in working at home, and get my house painted. Everything, except for the housework, went completely as planned. While I was on the way to the fair, I talked about what I was going to make, and, well, I didn't make anything. It wasn't the fabric I planned to make; I had enough for the housework AND the fabric I'd planned to make. Nope, what I made was a trip to the kitchen for a can of pumpkin pie spice. I love pumpkin. I love it so much that I make all kinds of pumpkin recipes, including pumpkin bread, muffins, pumpkin pie, and fall-themed appetizers. I definitely do not eat pumpkin. I thought maybe it would settle down the nausea that I had for the last 2 days. I was wrong. No, scratch that; I ate pumpkin 2 years ago and it didn't settle down anything, except for the fact that I felt like I was eating weird things after, and this time, I felt sick to my stomach. What? After just eating one can of pumpkin?! I know the nausea isn't a new symptom. I've had it before, but it wasn't as bad. I didn't go to the doctor; I just assumed I had a regular case of digestive problems and figured if it was that bad, they'd be able to help. That was 2 weeks ago. 2 weeks and now? Enough said. I had enough. I went to the fair and started cleaning. That was it; I was done. I had my house clean, I was off the county fair route and took a back road from my house all the way home. While we were driving, I decided it would 913 A.2d 500, 505 (Pa. Cmwlth. 2006). The Board's findings are considered fact and will not be disturbed unless they are unsupported by substantial evidence. Id. Substantial evidence is defined as such relevant evidence as a reasonable person might accept as adequate to support a conclusion. Id. The Board's findings of fact are binding upon this Court where the evidence, record and law support those findings. Davis v. Unemployment Compensation Board of Review, 898 A.2d 988 (Pa. Cmwlth. 2006). To establish reasonable notice of the employer's fixed and substantial change in the terms and conditions of employment, the claimant must prove both: (1) a change in the employment; and (2) the change was substantial. Stauffer v. Unemployment Compensation Board of Review, 49 A.3d 531, 534 (Pa. Cmwlth. 2012). The claimant has the burden of proving both prongs of the test and must satisfy all of its elements. Id. The claimant must demonstrate that his employer knew or reasonably should have known that the employer changed the terms and conditions of employment. Id. A unilateral change in the employment conditions that occurred after the employee's acceptance is not sufficient to provide reasonable notice. Bensalem Township v. Unemployment Compensation Board of Review, 59 A.3d 661, 669 (Pa. Cmwlth. 2013). However, the employer's awareness that the 4 terms and conditions of employment have changed is a subjective standard that is dependent upon the surrounding circumstances. Stauffer, 49 A.3d at 534. The circumstances for assessing the reasonableness of the employer's notice must be viewed from the employer's perspective. See e.g., Thompson v. Unemployment Compensation Board of Review, 505 A.2d 621, 623 (Pa. Cmwlth. 1986). Employer argues that it
