The story of a young man named Tarnished is about to begin. Tarnished comes from an insignificant village. He was born into the downtrodden class, the peasantry, and lived a life of deprivation. "As long as I can remember, I have always been an outcast." At the age of 22, Tarnished's life changes completely. One day, he meets Kelden, the leader of an outlawed guild of assassins known as the Elves of Dominion. Kelden promises Tarnished a better life. Tarnished joins the guild and is then further instructed and trained by Kelden. After several years of experience, Tarnished reaches an apex in his skill level and becomes an Elden Lord, an elite warrior for the dark and mysterious Elves of Dominion. He is a powerful individual who can stand up to the ultimate evil, the angel of Death. And although the world is harsh, it's a world that allows you to live even more exciting, and a world where everything is possible. He can also become the hero who is cherished by his people.

Chief9000.com Real LifeThere's gold in them there mountains after all. Scientists from the University of Michigan have discovered gold in a mine in northwest China that's 250 million years old. Known in the research community as Shantou, the mine was discovered about four years ago. When researchers examined Shantou's mineral composition, it was thought that fossils had been formed about five million years ago based on sedimentary formations, but the team believes that Shantou is older. "A 250-million-year-old gold mine, in a relatively pristine, isolated band of sedimentary rocks known as the Nanxunshan Formation, is unexpected. This is the first discovery of such a mineralized system likely to be genetically related to known gold deposits in the world," according to the study's co-author Ward Wheeler, a research geologist at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. Shantou is the latest find in a growing body of evidence that's supporting a theory first proposed in 1978 that there may have been a supercontinent called Nuna that existed 250 million years ago and that it was found in this region of China. Nuna theory suggests that during the Nuna supercontinent's reign, there were oceans that ran all over what was then the North American landmass and that today's China and India were a water-covered continent that later collided with Eurasia. The gold-wafer found in Shantou is called a pressurized aphanitic peridotite and it is one of
