Not in my opinion a fair description to be honest. This is a joke. And not particularly amusing. And certainly not for a completely sympathetic listener. It has not a positive point to make. It is not intended to. It is, in fact, just an excuse for a load of fans to feel like they've been a part of something unique, something special. Even if they are true, their opinion is not necessarily worth listening to. It's just a bandwagon-jumping attempt to jump on the "real flute, real flute player, real flute lover, praise us, you know" movement. It's just bovine excrement. I cannot think of a more accurate example. It is not particularly clever, but it is very readable. That is just about all I can say for it. " JooNn eVEN so moVe in HULK-like bArk hULK rEaLiNg tOIog can't thou". P.S. If you disagree with my opinion, feel free to leave a comment. That's what comments are for. Mechanisms of eicosanoid production during lung inflammation. Among the products of oxygen-dependent metabolism that can lead to tissue injury during inflammation are the eicosanoids, the family of mediators derived from arachidonic acid (AA). The 5-lipoxygenase pathway of AA metabolism is characterized by the production of the cyclooxygenase (COX)-1 product prostaglandin E2 (PGE2) and the 15-lipoxygenase pathway by the biosynthesis of leukotrienes (LTs) and the lipoxins. The two pathways may exhibit a cascade-like relationship with the biosynthetic steps being regulated reciprocally. Thromboxane, LTB4 and 5-HETE inhibit the expression of 15-lipoxygenase, which is essential for production of all LTs. Although AA is the substrate for all AA metabolizing enzymes, the reduction in biosynthetic capacity of the 5-lipoxygenase pathway does not lead to an accumulation of AA. The reason is that AA is rapidly converted to the epoxide 5(S), 12(S)-epoxide and then to the diastereomeric epoxyeicosatrienoic acids (EETs) by epoxygenase
