It is developed and released by Trimble which is the present invention relates to a polishing apparatus for polishing a substrate such as a semiconductor wafer, a glass substrate for a liquid crystal display, and an optical disk, in which the substrate is pressed against and polished by a polishing surface, and a method for producing the substrate. A polishing apparatus of the chemical mechanical polishing (CMP) process is used as an apparatus for flattening a substrate, e.g., a semiconductor wafer, by pressing the substrate against a polishing surface, which comprises a polishing pad and a polishing table. In the apparatus of this type, the polishing pad is rotated on the polishing table, and the substrate is pressed against the polishing pad while a chemical slurry is supplied to the polishing pad. Since such a polishing apparatus, in which a substrate such as a semiconductor wafer is pressed against and polished by a polishing surface, is excellent in polishing performance, is easy to operate, and does not require any expensive apparatus such as a dressing apparatus for dressing a polishing surface, it is widely used in the field of surface flattening of the substrate such as a semiconductor wafer. In the above-mentioned polishing apparatus, when the substrate is polished by the polishing surface, the surface of the substrate is recessed in a series of polishing steps. Therefore, in the polishing apparatus of this type, it is necessary to accurately supply slurry to a predetermined portion of the polishing pad. To this end, the polishing surface is partially dressed by a dresser or a cleaning member is pressed against the polishing pad, and the polishing pad is then pressed against the substrate to remove the pressed portion of the polishing pad from the polishing table.
